growing concern the tide of the country youth immigrating to the city. We ave seen the rural communities stand ng stationary and in many cases going back. Our efforts in the city to weed out gambling and to secure bater supervision for dance halls, billiard rooms, moving picture theaters, etc., for the young people, reveals the fact that the worst danger arises from the "uninitiated" country boys and girls. Three-fourths of the sad cases coming junder our observation are of this class.

How to keep country boys and girls at home during the impressionable years, therefore, has become a vital issue in the work of our association. This means boost the country town, and to this end the rural community must be induced to patronize itself in the two great spheres of human interest-business and pleasure. First to secure the former, merchants must display their wares attractively in their windows and fill the space of their local paper with eatchy suggestions. The very things that are now drawing country trade to the city. Nothing gives a town a more thriving appearance than attractive windows of business display. If you haven't a good window tear down the end of your store and put one in. It will pay you in big interest.

Second, provide the young people with good, wholesome amusements. Promote clean, legitimate recreations of every kind. Remember there are children's games, ladies' games, and old people's games. Alas for the person who has grown too old to play. Do not try to make an old lady, however, out of a young man. That only disgusts him and makes him disgusted and drives him to the city.

Young couples want some place to go in the evening. If you have no theater, why not build one? At least you could maintain a moving picture show. Young men love to play billiards. See that they have a good. clean room for that purpose. Open a large, well ventilated hall. See that it is properly supervised. Do not become hostile and prohibitive. But, appoint a censor committee to inspect all public places of recreation, something like the recently established commission in Detroit.

These two things, gentlemen, advertise your business and entertain your people! Therein lies the hope of the F. J. MILNES, country town. Pres. Nat'l Game Ass'p.,

Mrs. M. B. Ferrey, of the Michigan Pioneer and Historical society, of Lansing, addressed a meeting at the high school room on Friday night of last week. The principal object of her talk was to interest the people generally in the conservation of our county history.

She begun her address by telling many of the historical facts regarding the state of Michigan-telling of the early explorers and settlers, also many highly interesting events that occured between their time and the present.

Mrs. Ferrey's address was highly edifying and held the small audieuce with undivided attention. Among the startling things that she said was that our educational system does not compel the schools to teach Michigan his-

She also stated that there was very little information on file regarding Crawford county, and spoke complimentary of Perry Ostrauder, whom she says furnished the only historical specimens from this county on display in the Michigan historical museum at Lansing. One of these being an old "grand father's clock that was too tall for the shelf" and was over 100 years old.

Mrs. Ferry seems to be particularly anxious to get blographical sketches of our early settlers, this to be followed by other citizens of the county. Those who happen to be in possession of facts regarding our early pioneers are urged to send them in and we will 17. J. if you had been close enough you perhaps would have noted that it was a queer, mirthless little taugh. Then the Rev. Mr. Hanks went over close to the stone rise of the great building and patted it. He had reason to. It was that building that had saved his life three months before as he sat in a tent in the middle of the Arabian desert with thirty murderous Arabs squatting on the ground around bim and monotonously whetting the long knives with which they would cut him into small pieces. Could you blame him for a feeling of friendliness for that cold, ruthless granite which he caressed?

Missionary Hank tells it thus: "I had been working among them for three years—the desert he began. "I'd learned their language and their customs, and I was practically one of them, riding and pitching my tent and working with them like a brother. And they were brothers worthy of the name, those wild, free men to whom honor is the first consideration. New York could take many a lesson from them in morals and in respect toward women.

"One night we pitched camp after a hot day's ride, and as darkness fell we were suddenly aroused by a courier from another of our camps with the news that the Aneza, a warlike and murderous tribe, had attacked and carried off several women and children.

"That was a signal for all our able-bodied men to ride to the other camp and try to recover the kidnaped women and children. In five minutes kidnaped women and children. the beat of the hoofs of the ponies had died out in the dark, and I was the only man left in our

Crawled into my tent and went to sleep. It must have been near midnight when I was awak-ened by the sound of hoofs. I imagined our own men returning and paid no attention until the flap of the tent was laid back and five strange Arabs entered. Each held a long knife, and before I could roll off my blanket these knives circle within an inch throat. I lay still.

"Silently more and more men entered the tent, all with the long desert knives. I knew then they were the Aneza. They had learned of the departure of our men, and had slipped into the camp to stent in their absence.

For a time not a word came from the lips of this feroclous desert band of marauders, bent upon pillage and murder. Stealthly they crept about the tent examining our luggage. They broke open my chest and tumbled out upon the blanketed ground the few treasured books I posressed, the trinkets I had saved as mementoes of my journeys through the wild regions, a few gifts that served to remind me of pleasant memo ries among the tribes in which I had passed months of pleasurable labor

The gaudy trinkets of American manufacture they pounced upon like children turned loose in a toy shop. They were quick to appropriate ex-tra blankets, boots and a couple of saddles. But all the while I could have no doubt from their men, and I doubted not their actions when my nationality and my mission should be discovered. "One huge black fellow seemed to be the a torch he carried, they seemed to notice that my akin was white. In an instant the discovery created the greatest excitement. Several lunged forward with their knives, as though to cut it ert for all the attention they bestowed upon me-The search over, they gathered around more closely. Meantime it is needless to say I was frightened. I knew the ferocity of these wild

All this time but little attention had been paid to my presence. I might be a native of the desactions that they were hunting for gold. They were convinced the party was well supplied with money and proposed to have it. They were determined on that score, and they held life worththey had seen but "'There is no hurry,' the chief said again.

We must do so before the coming of day,

Then in a flash it came back to me that I had heard from men of our own tribe that the Aneza were sun worshippers, and that it was the greatest of all religious crimes among them to commit murder when the sun-their god-was in the ascendancy. Like a shot it came to me that if I could delay the execution until sunrise my life would be saved. But how?

"The hope seemed futile. I wondered what time it was. I knew it was after midnight. As I lay on my blankets, watching those hideous black faces that were doubly black and grotesque in the weird flame of the torches, I began to work my watch. I got it out and dropped my eyes to the face. In the gloom I could make out the hands pointing to 2 o'clock. It was nearly three hours to sun-up. There was not the ghost of a chance of holding them off until then.

"But, just the same, I kept trying to figure it out in my mind—to devise some plan to that end. And meanwhile I began to witness the services that were to precede my death. Squatting there with their black legs crossed that grim semi circle of flends began to rock slowly back and forth from the hips, humming a strange, unminor monotone. Out in front the big lude, so to speak. And I was to be the sacrifice.

"I tell you, it got into my nerves. I don't think I am a natural coward, but half rythmically, keeping time, as it were, to the beating chant of those voices and the sway and swing of the black bodies, I heard my teeth begin to click.

"I glanced over my shoulder to the other flap As I did so the Arab chief seemed to divine my thought, for at a motion of his hand the semi-circle moved forward a couple of feet closer and, squatting again, went on with the gruesome ceremonies. There was no chance of escape by flight, that was certain.

"But never for a moment did I stop thinking; struggling to drag an idea out of the confusion in my brain. And all the time the Aneza went on whetting the knives and crooning and swaying.

"Half an hour, then an hour went by. I countminutes, for I knev time left me yet to live. And then, suddenly, I turned cold. My heart leaped and something fill-ed my throat. It was the idea I had been combing my brain for, and it was a chance, ever so faint, perhaps, but still a chance

"Across the tent, not ten feet distant, was my trunk with my stereopticon lantern, and my slides—slides I had made of New York city, of the Metropolitan tower and Broadway, and all her sights of home. Could I but—! Speaking in Arab, I addressed the chief Hefore the time came to make the sacrifice I had something to show them-something the like of which they had never seen. Would they like to Breathless, I awaited the answer. There was silence: then it came. The chief would like to I pointed to the trunk. They brought it to I unpacked the lantern and set it up, the knives were following me not two inches screen. I lighted the lantern and dronned in the first slide. Across the circle of light floated in color the great Metropolitan tower. As it did so the muttering murmur of the death prelude wav-

"There was a silence; then sharp words of mystery, or wonder, of-fear. Working swiftly, I killed the exterior of the tower and shot into its place a view of its interior, then another and another. I followed with pictures from its toppictures of the river, of Broadway below, of motor cars tearing along with no visible means of locomotion, of the loom of giant skyscrapers in the distance, of huge bridges across the East river, of steamboats and liners running out of the harbor, of Miss Liberty on Bedloe's Island and of the marvelous tangle of Coney Island.

"The death prelude was forgotten. The fear gave place to an ever-growing wonder. The semi-circle leaned forward, a mass of peering, crowding black heads and black shoulders;

"I alone, I believe, remembered the present My murderers were too engrossed, too astounded by what they saw, to remember. But I prayed only that the pictures would hold out; that the spell would not fail. It was a trying time. Afterward I found I had bitten half through my lip, but at the time I felt nothing. I dared not pause to glance at my watch, but still I held them there as the minutes dragged to hours.

"At last the final picture went into the lantern For a desperate instant I felt my heart go down. What could I do? Would they remember if I repeated? Would they— But before I could complete the thought in through the canvas entrance of the tent there stole a thin, golden thread. It crept across the floor and rested on

"With a short cry the chief jumped to his fect. The others followed, talking excitedly. For a moment they glanced at me, but I sprang to the flap of the tent and tore it back. day!" I shrieked in Arab, and at the cry they fled pell-mell from the tent and beyond the camp to their horses."

The Rev. Mr. Hanks stopped and smiled.

"When they were gone," he said, "I sat down on the ground and cried."

HUMOR OF BAD WRITING.

Sheridan's writing was a scandal to his school to Drury Lane, and the doorkeeper stopped its bearer and immediately pronounced it to be a forgery, because he could decipher it! make matters worse, Sheridan was also uncertain in his spelling. A "which." s "where," and a "whether" in his hands, for instance, were as often as not deprived of their "aiches," and a "thing" was to him always a "think" and nothing

The atrocious writing of celebrities recalls the claim once made on behalf of Baron Bramwell that he wrote three hands: "One which he alone could read, another which his clerk could read and he couldn't, and a third which nobody could read," and the last-named was his usual style

Lord Curson, when a young man at college, once found his bad handwriting stand him in good stead. Writing two letters, one to a relative, the other to a chum, he encloses them in the wrong envelopes. It chanced that in the second letter he had made some uncomplimentary reference to his relative, and on discovering the mistake he had made he awaited developments with anxiety. There presently came a letter from the uncle. "I have tried to decipher your epistic," It ran, "but your writing is so atrocious that I cannot make head or tall of it. However, I guess the drift of it to be that you need some money, you rogue, so I enclose a check."

Bad handwriting is not always a handleap in The late Lord Goschen once said that his father attributed the foundations of his fortune to the fact that he was abliged to found a firm because he wrote such a bad hand that no one Mr. Arthur Elliot records that "his handwriting got steadily worse, and in his latter years he might have spelt as he chose. At length his script became undecipherable, even by himself. He could not, when speaking in parliament, make out what it was that he had put on paper, and he thus came in later days to abandon almost en-tirely his old practice of making notes."

Professor Blackle had a peculiar "fist." An elderly compositor on the Scotsman, however, knew nearly all about the professor. One night there was a particularly difficult manuscript from the professor. It was put before the expert, with an inquiry as to whether or not he could set it. AMBER AS A MEDICINE.

The ancients employed amber as a medicine, and it is still prescribed by physicians in France, Germany and Italy. Several chemists in Paris keep it constantly in stock. It has been worn by ladies and children from time immemorial as ar has been pronounced of service, either taken internally or worn around the neck. Callistratus gave the name of chryselektron to amber of a clear golden color, which, worn around the neck cured ague, ground up with honey and rose it was a specific for deafness and with Attic honey for dimness of sight. But to come to more recent times, Perera says in the third edition of his "Materia Medica," published in 1853, that amwas not even then employed as a medicine this country, but that "it was formerly used in chronic catarrhs, amennorhoes, hysteria, etc., and was given either in the form of a powder, in doses of ten grains to a drachm, or in that of a in some of the European formularies.—Family

SHARKS BLOW SHIP WHISTLE

Then Sallers Know the Much Hated Fish Has Bean Caught on Their Hooks.

Sharks are numerous in Magdalena bay, on the west coast of the Peninsua of Lower California, says the Wide World. The monsters at this point World. and it is rarely that a warship is seen at anchor without from one to a half dozen lines danging from its stern. Watching a shark line is a tedious business, but it is strictly necessary n order that the fisherman may know frantic rushes, if allowed to go unchecked, are pretty sure to cause some part of the line, leader, or even a part of its own anatomy to give way, and result in its escape.

The old scheme of tying the line around one's big toe and going to sleep would probably work all right so far as rousing the fisherman was concerned, but the sequel might not leave him in a condition to give undivided attention to landing the prize. To this end the officers and sallors have hit on an ingenious plan. Instead of taking in their lines when the dinner gong sounds or when for any reason they stout piece of marlin twine from the sharkline up to the steam whistle leaving it for the man eater himself to announce the event of his being nooked by sounding a toot.

Luxury for Ostriches. Dealing with the anti-plumage cam-paign in England, the Cape Times in a leading article remarks that: "Were it not for the commercial value of its feathers, the ostrich would today be as rare in civilized South Africa as the hippopotamus. The ostrich is really a much pampered bird, living a life of pure luxury. He is bred and kept in condition merely for the sake of his feathers, and generally he lives to a ripe old age. The feathers are not pulled out from the sockets by the roots, but are cut with as little pain to the bird as is caused to a sheep by

Physicians Recommend Castoria

CASTORIA has met with pronounced favor on the part of physicians, pharmaceutical societies and medical authorities. It is used by physicians with results most gratifying. The extended use of Castoria is unquestionably the result of three facts: First—The indisputable evidence that it is harmless: Second-That it not only allays stomach pains and quiets the nerves, but assimilates the food: Third—It is an agreeable and perfect substitute for Castor Oil. It is absolutely safe. It does not contain any Opium, Morphine, or other narcotio and does not stupefy. It is unlike Soothing Syrups, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, etc. This is a good deal for a Medical Journal to say. Our duty, however, is to expose danger and record the means of advancing health. The day for poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance ought to end. To our knowledge. Castoria is a remedy which produces composure and health, by regulating the system-not by stupefying it-and our readers are entitled to the information. - Hall's Journal of Realth.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. B. Halstead Scott, of Chicago, Illa., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria often for infants during my practice, and find it very satisfactory." Dr. William Belmont, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "Your Castoria stands first in its class. In my thirty years of practice I can say I never have found anything that so filled the place."

Dr. J. H. Taft, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria and found it an excellent remedy in my household and private practice for many years. The formula is excellent." Dr. R. J. Hamlen, of Detroit, Mich., says: "I prescribe your Castoria extensively, as I have never found anything to equal it for children's troubles. I am aware that there are imitations in the field, but I always see that my patients get Fletcher's." Dr. Wm. J McCrann, of Omaha, Nab., says: "As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine, and aside from my own family experience I have in my years of practice found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home." Dr. J. R. Clausen, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "The name that your Cas toria has made for itself in the tens of thousands of homes blessed by the sence of children, scarcely needs to be supplemented by the endorse ment of the medical profession, but I, for one, most heartly endorse it and

Dr. R. M. Ward, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Physicians generally do not prescribe proprietary preparations, but in the case of Castoria my experience, like that of many other physicians, has taught me to make an exception. I prescribe your Castoria in my practice because I have found it to be a thoroughly reliable remedy for children's complaints. Any physician who has raised a family, as I have, will join me in heartiest recommendation of Castoria."

The very thought of the hospital operating table and the surgeon's knife strikes terror to her heart, and no wonder. It is quite true that some of these troubles may reach a stage where an operation is the only resource, but thousands of women have avoided the necessity of an operation by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. This fact is attested by the grateful letters they write to us after their health has been restored.

NOT BAD FOR AN AMATEUR Youth's Idea of Paying a Compliment

Should Have Given Pleasure to Favored One. He was a very literary young ma and never paid much attention to the fair sex. But one evening, however, he was calling on a young woman who had succeeded in attracting him as he tremely anxious to "make good" and his precious inexperience in the line of love making he felt keenly at this particular time. Try as he would, he seemed un able to pay her any direct compliment until he turned the conversation thus: "I am rather more in favor of the English than the American mode of spelling." "Yes?" she returned, rather uninterby John D. Barry. "Yes, indeed; take 'parlour,' for instance; having 'u' in it makes all the difference in the world."

Two Kinds of Danger. Familiarity with danger sometimes breeds contempt for it. It is a curigaged in work that involves peril of fire or explosion have to be restrained by strict regulations for their own good. But fire and explosion are not the only hazards. Some of the insti-tutions that seem farthest removed from danger are really places of considerable hazard. A small private bank in the village of Clarkston looked about the last place in the world where an inmate might consider him self in danger, but danger was there The temptation to enjoy a smoke at the risk of lives and property and the loss of employment to 100 fellow-crea tures differs only in form from the temptation to grow rapidly rich by un lawful use of money deposited by thrusting fellow-citizens for safe keep-ing, a small rate of interest and the promotion of the business welfare of the community.

SHOULD HAVE ROUSED HIM Mrs. Brown's Method of Removing Gloom May Not Be Generally Recommended.

Gloom prevailed in the domestic circle—a gloom horrible and depressing. Mr. Brown, in fact, was in a bad temper. And, as Mrs. Brown knew, there was only one way of curing it—to rouse him thoroughly; for, when miserable himself, he always accused other people of being miserable. He did on this occasion.

GRAYLING, THURSDAY, SEPT. 18

Dogs are a very useful animal in many instances and, again, one of the greatest nuisances that a community has to contend with. Bay City has been having her time with dogs. Several cases of rabies developed there from pmong these "harmless pets" and children have had to be taken to the pasteur institute for treatment for this most dreaded infection. Death from rables is one of the most horrible that can be imagin-Notwithstanding all this, useless dogs are permitted to run lose in our streets every day, and we permit it. We might hold a match over a powder keg and come away unharmed but that is no reason why we should try it. If we had our way we should make the abuse of horses, dogs and cattle a penal offense, still we wouldn't want to see our people run over by these dumb brutes-the lives and comfort of men, women and chil dren first and then, perhaps, our pets. We have no moral right to inflict these nuisances upon the public. In Bay City recently, the police board was ordered to kill every dog found running at large, so it can be seen that we are not alone in our ideas. The accident that occured to Peter Lovely on Sept. 8th came from being run into by a bunch of fighting dogs. Where is the remedy? We doubt if the rem edy lies within the power of any one man or a set of men. It will, we be lieve, require the united effort on the part of every dog owner to see that his dog is always within its own right. The enforced payment of the dog tax would also materially reduce the number of the useless mongrels. Mr. Dog owner, there is the experience of Mr. Lovely for consideration, and w could tell you of dozens of complaints that have come to us about the permiscuous running at large of dogs.

A couple of Finus have been playing a leading role in our justice courts this week. One jumped a board bill Joe Letzkus, while at work in the and the other fellow didn't like it so day afternoon was injured quite badly and sent Sheriff Benedict to Mackinaw to bring the fellow back. The case came up before Justice Mahon Tuesday afternoon. As the judgwere unable to pronounce their names for us, and still less able to spell them, we will be compelled to referr to them as "they." During the examination one of the "theys," it was believed by those present, said some thing that sounded like "guilty," so was let off for payment of costs and the amount of his board bill. Being without funds he was remanded to iall for twenty days. This simple case will cost the taxpayers nearly $50 in fees, court costs and railroad fares and jail board. It would be a simple matter for this county to use these "theys" to work on the streets and other places and thus really make a profit for the county instead of a dead load of expense to the taxpayers. We have so often spoken of the "Chain gang" that this county would soon put A map of the tract may be seen and detailed information secured concerning it, on application to the caretaker on the reservation.

Picturesque Figure Rose From News boy to Great Power-Mind Gone He Escapes From Nurses and Loses Life.

Sullivan, who was ill, eluded his nurses August 31, and a few hours after was struck and killed by a train -at Pelham parkway.
"Dry Dollar," "The Big Feller,"

"Big Tim," was a sadiy shrunken fig ure physically, financially and poltioally compared with what he was a few years ago. When he was in robust health he was a fine-looking, upstanding man of some 210 pounds weight. Illness robbed his form and re duced it to its youthful slenderness. He weighed scarce 140 pounds at the time of his death. He was only 50. and never touched liquor or tobacco but an attack of diabetes and an evergrowing burden of worry and care dragged him down. Big Tim, the idol of the Bowery, has been one of the most picturesque figures in American politics. He loomed large in the dusky background of the city's life, the strongest politicita in Tammany Halt. His word was law to many thousands. He had the largest personal following any man in New York politics ever could command. No man ever has been more generous to the legion of the hopeless, the army of the down and out. Twice or thrice a year he fed 8,000 or 10,000 homeless men, and once or twice a year he sup plied shoes to equal number of waste men of the Bowery. LETTER FROM THE STATE CAPITOL

ATTORNEY GENERAL PASSES ON A NUMBER OF QUES-TIONS.

FLAW IS FOUND IN MOTHERS' PENSION BILL

Excernia From Address of Secretary of State On Desirability of Building and Loan Associations in Every Town.

[By Gurd M. Hayes.]

Lansing, Mich-Attorney General Fellows holds that the hill passed at he last session of the legislature providing that oleomargarine may used as a substitude for butter in the various penal institutions, does not apply to the Industrial School for loys at Lansing and the industrial School for Girls at Adrian. Feilows mys that these two schools are regarded more as educational institutions and he does not think that the legislature intended that eleomargarine should be used as a butter substitute in these places.

In an opinion rendered to Warder Simpson of Jackson prison, Attorney General Fellows mays that the semi monthly pay bill placed on the statute books does not apply to state departments or state institutions. However, it has been the practice in the state departments to pay the employes

It is Fellows' contention that the governor cannot appoint probation of ficers or their assistants in the vartous judicial circuits, except on the recommendation of the court and Executive Clerk Austin was noutled to this erect in an opinion today.

Solicitors who go from house to ouse taking orders for a foreign corporation, cannot be compelled to take out a hawkers' und peddlers' license under a village or city charter, says Fellows. Assistant Prosecuting Attor ney Brown of Ingham county, inquired whether a solicitor who was simply an order taker and neither received money or delivered the goods could be forced to take out a local itemse

That there is a flaw in the mothers pension law, so-called, which was passed at the last session, developed as the result of a ruling by Attor ney General Fellows. Where a motaer ceases to be the legal guardian of a child there is no way that the child can be benefited under the act as the money must be paid directly to the

This decision from the state's legal department arsies as the result of a case in Cass county. Probate Judge the mother of a dependent child had been committed to an insane asylum. The child was placed in the care of the grandmother and funds were need ed for the child's education. Fellows informed Judge Eby that he had no legal right to enter an order fixing the amount to be paid to the grandmother for the support of the child. Although the baseball season for this year is practically closed, Fellows received a request from Sheriff Wil-Ham F. Shell, of Gladwin county, for information as to whether it is possible to stop Sunday games. "In the case of Yerkes vs. Smith. which was an action brought to compel the police comprissioner of Detroit, to take action to prevent a game the supreme court held that the mere assembling of persons to play and wit ness any Sunday game is not sufficient without overt acts of violence of dis order, to authorize an officer to make a summary arrest." said Fellows.

"Under this decision of the suprem court it follows that a crowd exceeding thirty persons assembled on Sun day to witness a ball game or for any other similar purposes, if riotuous or prosecution. In other words, persons present at and participating in such game may not under the general laws of the state be summarily arrested and prosecuted unless the conduct of the assemblage is such as to warrant an officer to command its dispersal and then arrests may be made only upon course, as stated in the opinion of the court in the case of Yerkes vs Smith, any person participating in such a game is hable to the penalty of $10 to be enforced in a civil action brought for that purpose."

"Building and loan" associations properly conducted are ideal institu-tions of mutual co-operation," said Secretary of State Frederick C. Martindale in an address at the annual meeting of the Michigan Building and Loan Associations' League. The supervision of these associations is placed in charge of the state department and Secretary Martindale has had abundant opportunity to observe their workings during the years that he has been in office.

"They have ceased to be an experiment and are now recognized on an conomic factor and play an important part in the progress and welfare of the state and nation," continued Martindale. "By their plan of operation they have encouraged thrift and economy and have developed a syste-

"Michigan associations have, during the past decade, more than doubled their assets and, at the present time are in a prosperous and figurishing condition. This growing popularity is due to various ressons: state supervision, conservative and skillful management and high business integrity of the men directly in charge. The most important factor to my mind has been the reduction of interest to the borrower and the elimination of complex fecs and premiums. Without new borrowers, an association must neces sarily decline and an association that intends to advance and be of benefit must treat the borrower, the source of its income and the cause for its xistance, well. A simple morgage and a low and uniform rate of interest provides the best security. Under a high rate the association becomes the last resort of the borrower.

"There is probably no city or town in the state of any consequence in which a properly conducted association could not be organized and operated to the mutual advantage of all concerned and also be of inestimable value to the community. I believe it would be a benefit to this league if an educational campaign should be started to popularize the building and loan movement in these localities, in view of future legislation and protec tion. As the times change so must methods, consequently new laws and regulations.

"During the past few years many changes have come up for discussion and consequently among those have been the 'borrowing of money.' Borrowing where it is cheap and loaning t where it is dear does not fall within he object contemplated by building and loan associations. It should at ment and should not be carried in large amounts from year to year, as it is sometimes done in some associations. It does not as a rule increase the dividends to members, but only increases the risk. In most cases the estate promoters or contractors and I luestion the advisibility of making oo many loans to contractors, who in turn sell on contract. This is more r less speculative and in case of a shump, unless the builder be a man of neans, is apt to saddle the association with burdonsome real estate.

"The law provides that at least one per cent of the net earnings should be set aside annually and some are very toath to do this. In my estimation one per cent is not enough. It should reaches the required five per cent of outstanding loans. This is provided in the laws governing building and oun associations in many of the other states. In Ohio especially, where building and loan associations thrive in great numbers, thousands of small houses were destroyed by fire and lood, but thanks to the reserve fund, not a dollar was lost to the depositors. The argument advanced-'we never had any losses'—is not a sufeguard against the elements."

Secretary of State Martindale says that the assets of the various building and loan associations in Michigan at the close of the fiscal year amounted to $24,008,662.40, and increase of $1,-78,223.08 over the previous year. Loans on mortgage security and on association stock increased $2,159,-839.32 or 11.4 per cent. The amount to the credit of members on stock and dividends is $22. 198,594.04 while the reserve fund has been increased to $338,947.68 which is 1.6 per cent of the loans in force. The receipts for the year were $15,-015.488.99. Approximately $4.493.000 by way of installments withdrawn and $647.00 in profits were distributed to the shareholders. Through the co-operations of the members of the local associations 1195 new homes were milt last year with an estimated value of $1.500.000. New carnings were $1. 70,030.06 which was 6.1 per cent of the dues and dividends credited. The operating expense was one per cent of the assets. The total membership is reported as 55.920, an increase of 8,171 while the sharer in force have increased from $581.712 to $619.188.

A Suggestion for Digestion

Many persons suffer more or less from headache, dizziness, biliousness, and symptoms common to indigestion. There are various causes, such as over-starchy or greasy foods, improper mastication, or bad cooking.

Grape=Nuts Solves the digestion problem.

This food, made from prime whole wheat and barley, is perfectly baked until the starch cells are either converted into easily digested grape sugar, or thoroughly broken down for quick digestion—generally in about one hour.

There is no animal fat in Grape-Nuts.

The crisp granules of Grape-Nuts come to your table ready-to-eat direct from package, invite thorough mastication and have a peculiarly sweet, nut-like flavor.

Grape-Nuts, containing all the rich elements of wheat and barley, including the vital mineral salts, is a perfectly balanced food for building muscle, bone, brain and nerve.

> Grape-Nuts is probably the longest baked, the best balanced, and the most easily digested of all cereal foods. Wonderfully appetizing with cream and sugar.

Griando, upon leaving his brother's room, did not stop to deliver that brother's message directly to Doris: he left this for Truda to do, and re-tired immediately to his hangar in the woods. Locking himself in, he slightly raised the roof and then sat down before the car which was rapidly taking on shape and assuming that individuality, and appearance of sentient life which hitherto he had only seen in dreams. But his eye, which had never failed to kindle at this sight before, shone dully in the semi-gloom. The air-car could wait: he would first have his hour in this rolitude of his own making. The gaze he dreaded the words from which he shrank could not penetrate here. He valid's breast? She gasped in terror might even shout her name aloud, and these windowless walls would for his eyes had opened again and respond. He was alone with his past, his present and his future.

Only a fool would ignore these steeps of jagged rock; and he was no fool, man to whom the unexpected had happened, a man who had seer his way clear to the horizon and then come up against this! when he thought such folly dead! Remorse, when Glory called for the quiet mind and heart!

He recognized its mordant fang, and knew that its ravages, though just begun, would last his lifetime. Nothing could stop them now, nothing, nothing. And he laughed, as the thought went home; laughed at the irony of fate and its inexorableness; laughed at his own defeat and his nearness to a barred Paradise. Os-wald loved Edith, loved her yet, with a flame time would take long to quench. Doris loved Oswald and he Doris: and not one of them would attain the delights each was so fitted to enjoy. Why shouldn't he laugh? What is left to man but mockery when all props fall? Disappointment alone was the universal lot; and it should go merrily with him if he must take his turn at it. But here the strong spirit of the man reassertman's joys are not bounded by his loves or even by the satisfaction of a perfectly untrammeled mind. Performance makes a world of its own for the capable and the strong, and this was still left to him. He, Orlando Brotherson, despair while his great work lay unfinished! That would be to lay stress on the inevitable pains and fears of commonplace hu manity. He was not of that ilk. Intellect was his god; ambition his mo tive power. What would this canual blight upon his supreme contentment his air-car spread, he should spurn the earth and soar into the heaven of fame simultaneously with his flight place such value upon a life which, if ever useful to itself or others, has into the open.

Yet as the days went by, even her manner changed towards the busy inventor. It was hardly possible for it not to. The high stand be took; the regard accorded him on every side; his talent; his conversation, which was an education in itself, and, above all, his absorption in a work daily adhim so insensibly and yet so decided ly, from the hideous past of tragedy with which his name, if not his honor, was associated, that, unconsciously to herself, she gradually lost her icy air of repulsion and lent him a more or less attentive ear, when he chose to join their small company of an eve ning. The result was that he turned so bright a side upon her that tolera tion merged from day to day into admiration and memory lost itself in prove him a man of men, if not one of the world's greatest mechanical geniuses.

Meantime, Oswald was steadily improving in health, if not in spirits. He had taken his first walk without any unfavorable results, and Orlando decided from this that the time bad ome for an explanation of his device and his requirements in regard to it. Seated together in Oswald's room, he roached the subject thus:

"Oswald, what is your idea about what I'm making up there?"
"That it will be a success."

"I know; but its character, its use! "I've an idea: but my idea doesn't fit the conditions." "How's that?"

like to have asked why such precipitation was necessary, but the tone in which this ultimatum was given was or that decisive character which ad mits of no argument. He therefore merely looked his overy. But Orlando was not one to answer looks; be sides, he had no reply for the same importunate question urged by his own good sense. He knew that must make the attempt upon which his future rested soon, and without risk of the sapping influence of length ened suspense and weeks of waiting He could hold on to those two demons leagued in attack against him, for a definite seven days, but not for an indeterminate time. He therefore repeated his "No," with increased vehemence, adding, as he marked the reproach in his broth er's eye, "I cannot wait. The test must be made on Saturday evening next, whatever the conditions; what ever the weather. An air-car to be serviceable must be ready to meet lightning and tempest, and what is orse, perhaps, an insufficient crew. Then rising, he exclaimed, with determination which rendered him majestic, "If help is not forthcoming, I'll do it all myself. Nothing shall old me back; nothing shall stop me and when you see me and hear my car rise above the treetons, you'll feel that I have done what I could to make you forget-".

He did not need to continue. On wald understood and flashed a grateful look his way before saying:

And with a proud smile in which he flashed a significance which startled Oswald, he gave a hurried nod and turned away.

When in an hour afterwards, Doris ooked in through the open door, she found Oswald sitting with face buried in his hands, thinking so deeply that he did not hear her. He had sat like this, immovable and absorbed, ever since his brother had left him.

Simon replied that he and his partners had tolled all night, and had taken nothing; but "nevertheless," said he, "at word I will let down the net." And when they had done this, they inclosed a great multitude of fishes, so that their nets brake. And then they beckoned to those who were in the other boat to come and help them, and as a matter of fact both the boats were so filled with fish that they began to sink.

The effect on Peter was an overwhelming conviction of his sinfulness, and he said, "Depart from me; for I am a sinful man, O Lord." Nor was he less astonished or impressed But Jesus comforted him by saying: "Fear not: from henceforth thou shalt catch men." "And when they had brought their boats to land, they forsook all, and followed him."

(1.) We learn from this charming incident that Jesus is a good pay-master. He borrowed an empty fishing smack, and repaid the owner of it by filling it with fish! In one of his discourses to his disciples on another occasion he had said, "There is no man that hath left house, or brethren. or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my sake, and the gospel's, but he shall receive an hundredfold now in this time; . . . And in the world to come eternal life." In the present instance he seems to have been showing his disciples, and showing us as well, just what he meant by these words, and giving a demonstration of their truthfulness.

(2.) We learn in the second place that Jesus is a wise counsellor. He told these fishermen just where the fish were, and just where to let down their nets with the most beneficial results. We all need advice every day in our business affairs, our domestic affairs, and the countless prob-lems that are coming up continually in our existence. Some go to clair-voyants, some to palmists and spiritualists for such advice, but others who know him go to the Lord their God. He has said in the 37th Psalm. "The steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord; . . . though he fall, he shall not be utterly cast down." George Muller, the saint of Bristol. England, wrote in the margin of his Bible beside these verses the words. "His stops too." In other words, he had experienced the fact that the "stops" of a good man were as much ordered by the Lord as his steps, and many another saint of God has proven this to be true. Think how both the "steps" and the "steps" of Joseph ordered in the land of Egypt, and later on the "steps" and the "stops" of Daniel in the land of Babylon. These are two of the greatest statesmen the world has even known and they came to their greatness through their counselling with God.

(3.) We learn also that Jesus is a great benefactor. They who were simply fishers of fish now became fishers of men. What would Peter have amounted to had he remained in Capernaum? But what did he now become? Not only is his one of the three greatest names in the history of the Christian church, and not only is he now in felicity with his Lord and Master, but that same Lord and Master said to him and his fellow apostles. "Ye which have followed me, in the regeneration when the son of man shall sit in the throne of his glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel." Is this promise likely to come true? Yes, just as certainly as the Bible is the word of God, and Jesus Christ is the Son of God. But there are corresponding promises for all who know the true God and his Son, Jesus Christ, and who serve and trust him in the life of faith. He lifts the beggar from the dungbill to sit him among princes, an experience that has come to many a child of God in all the centuries long.

But what was the attitude of Pater that brought all this to pass in his case? The answer is simply, yieldedness of will. Christ asked him for his boat and he gave it to him; he told him to launch out into the deep for a draught and he launched out; when he was satisfied with the material result, he was asked to Jesus, and he left all and followed him.

To apply this to ourselves, we are to remember that the first step in the yielding of our will is the accepof Jesus Christ as our Saviour and the public confession of him as our Lord. This should be definite in telligent and irreversible on our part. frusting God to fulfill his word written in the Gospel of John, 1:12

GOO WILL LADGH AT HUMAN PRIDE

An Old Prophecy is About to Be Fulfilled, Says Pastor Russell.

It Has a Double Application-It Applied to Jesus Personally, but Also to the Body of Christ, the Church-The Kinus of the Earth-The Hulors Amongst God's People-Their Coalition Vain-tied Will Laugh at Them. Jesus Will Deride Them. The Breaking an a Potter's Vessel Will Follow. Only Those Who Put Their Trust In Him Will Be Lifted Up and Blessed.

On the Atlantic September 7.
-Pastor Russell's text today was, "He that sitteth in the Heavens shall laugh; the Lord shall have them in derision.'

The vast ocean. on which this stately ship is but a toy, reminds me both of "God's" mercy, like the wideness of the sea." and also of the vastness of Divine Power and human insignificance, said Pastor Russell. Humanity may justly feel encouraged by its present progress. Steel ships, a thousand feet long. carrying thousands of passengers, have replaced the wooden dories of a century ago. Not only have the oceans been underlaid with cables, but this majestic steamer is outlitted with wireless telegraphy. This is only one of many avenues of progress.

God's people, counselled by their Fa-ther's Word, see that God is behind the wonderful developments of our day; for we are living "in the day of His preparation" (Nahum 2:3) for Messlah's Kingdom. They perceive that God is gradually litting the vell of ignorance and superstition.

"Kings of Earth Set Thomselves." "The kings of earth," in a broader sense, include financial kings, captains of industry and political chieftains. These wise men of the world grasp the situation only in part. They perceive the riches and blessings rolling in upon the world through invention, and are fortifying themselves in luxury and wer. Thus have they set themselves. Moreover, "the rulers" of the people -professedly God's people-ecclesiasti-cal rulers and princes-are affiliated with them. "Together they take counsel." Their next step will be to put their counsels into practise.

"Let Us Break Their Bands." For centuries kings and governments have been more or less restrained by the people, guided by the Bible and its spirit of liberty. The new conditions of today, however, have evaded many restraints. So the people are intent upon making new regulations to cope with the trusts and the wealth of financial kings and with the great power of political kings. Through the Bible, the stronghold of liberty, the masses have learned that rich and poor must all eventually stand before the Judgment Scat and be judgthe Divine Plan of Restitution-the rolling away of the curse of death, shortly to be inaugurated in a great

Time of Trouble. The Bible spirit of liberty is the Divine restraint, the "bands" and "cords" of our context. What form opposition will assume toward the Bible is difficult to detail in advance.

Jesus the Head, the Church His Body The Lord's Anointed is The Christ of glory. This prophecy was fulfilled respecting Jesus when Pilate and Herod took counsel with the chief priests, scribes and Pharisees. Boise, Idaho.-But for the bravery of his wife, who attacked an angered bull with only the help of a dog, Gus Anderson, a prominent rancher and candidate for county commissioner at the last election, would have been a dead man, and as it is he is in an extremely precarious condition. Mr. Anderson, who lives on a ranch near the Soldiers' home, went out to the corrai to milk some cows, when a bull which was in the corral with the other ani mals came upon him from the rear knocked him over and before he could protect himself in any way had trampled him. His wife, hearing his cries for help, appeared in time to witness the attack of the animal, and calling a big dog which belongs on the ranch, she set him at the bull and succeeded in dragging her badly injured husband out of the corral while the dog was worrying the animal.
